2. Actively encourage and attract papers that are written from the outset in an interdisciplinary mold.
Our central editorial team is taking a more proactive role in assessing and commenting on papers, and where necessary desk rejecting submissions – our primary concern is with the potential for impact across the field as a whole.

Our area editors are selected by subject area – not by discipline or methods – and we ensure a level playing field for all submissions: there are no 'insiders' at JIBS.
