The Lingnan University Calendar defines plagiarism as “...the presentation of another person’s work without the proper acknowledgement of the source, whether protected by copyright or not, as the student’s own work”. All quotations and paraphrases taken or derived from the work of other authors should be properly acknowledged within the text of all assignments, and full bibliographic details of books/articles/websites used should be included in the reference list.

I understand that plagiarism--the unacknowledged use of the ideas and words of others--is a serious offense. I declare that all quotations and paraphrases taken or derived from the work of other scholars are properly acknowledged within the text of this research paper, and that the full bibliographic details of the books/articles/sites are included in the reference list.
