

International Postgraduate Summer School

25 June – 14 July 2018

Students Enjoy Experiential Learning at the University of Oxford

The International Postgraduate Summer School (IPSS) co-hosted by Lingnan University and the University of Oxford commenced on 25 June at Lingnan University, attracting the participation of postgraduate students and faculty members from different universities in Hong Kong and the region. After one-week study at Lingnan University, selected students continued the Programme at Hertford College, University of Oxford in early July.

Highlights of Students' Experiential Learning at the University Oxford

The IPSS 2018 provides the opportunity for students to establish their own research clusters with sharing interests and learning from world-renowned scholars to enrich their research experiences.

The two-week programme at the University Oxford includes a series of workshops on various research, as well as student presentations, and social activities.
