Congratulatory Messages from
The President and Vice-President

My heartiest congratulations to the Department of Economics on its 25th Anniversary and the Master of Science in International Banking and Finance (MIBF) Programme on its 15th Anniversary. I would like to extend my best wishes to the Department and the MIBF programme for their continued success in the future.

Professor CHENG Kwok Hon Leonard
BSSc (CUHK); MA, PhD (UC Berkeley); BSS, JP
President of Lingnan University
Chair Professor of Economics

Many congratulations to the Department of Economics for celebrating its 25th anniversary and 15th anniversary of MIBF. The University is proud of the achievements of the Department for integrating research in professional training programme like MIBF. The success of the MIBF marks the significant contributions of the Department of Economics in offering innovative education programme informed by serious research. Students of the MIBF programme enjoy great learning experience and benefit from comparative / international perspectives when analysing international business and finance related issues. Wish the Department of Economics scale new heights in its next phase of development, providing high quality education and impactful research.

To be 15 years old is to be a teenager.

To be 25 years old is to continue in one's youth, yet a youth who is growing and energetic with confidence.

Congratulations to the Economics Department on its 25th Anniversary and to the MIBF Program on its 15th Anniversary.

We have made great success and achievements in the past.

Our youth remains and gives us the opportunity to achieve more, grow more, and become stronger.

Congratulatory Messages from

Chairman of Advisory Board, MIBF Programme and Founding Programme Director, MIBF Programme

To commemorate the 15th Anniversary of the Master of International Banking and Finance Program.

Time does fly! I remember I was one of the first guest lecturers at this Program when the world was a distinctly different place.

In the past 15 years, much has happened in the World. We saw the Global Financial Crisis of 2008, the advent of Fintech, and now we are in the second year of the Covid-19 Pandemic. Geopolitical issues are also threatening to stifle trade. The world is changing from a cold war bipolar world to a multipolar world with no single predominant power. The United States, is running a structural budget deficit that is continually widening. This will at some point become unsustainable, and the world's economy would then reach a tipping point when all things drastically change. It is not possible to foretell what this dystopian world would be like, when it happens.

That is why we must prepare ourselves for some of the worst scenarios but yet have enough faith in ourselves as human beings. First, we must continue to acquire knowledge of all things new. Lifelong learning is a survival tactic. Second, we must remain vigilant to test all assertions irrespective of source by assiduous search and understanding of fact. Third, we must remain honest and truthful to ourselves and to others. Fourth, there is always a premium to be gained by being decent as a human being. These are the fundamentals that will help us survive in an increasingly unpredictable world!

Professor Anthony NEOH

QC, SC, JP

Chairman of Advisory Board, MIBF Programme, Department of Economics

Honorary Professor, Department of Economics

Undoubtedly, the Department of Economics of Lingnan University and the MIBF Programme are the two most important components of my career.

When I joined the Department of Economics, it was also the time when she was founded. So it is no exaggeration to say that I have grown up with the Department of Economics in the past 25 years. The most unforgettable part is the great brothers and sisters in our Department who formed a close family with love and care. And the greatest achievement of the Department of Economics must be the outstanding result we attained in the 2006 Research Assessment Exercise (RAE) in which we ranked number one in Hong Kong.

Personally, the participation in the establishment of the MIBF Programme is my greatest contribution to the Department. It is gratifying to see that MIBF has developed into today's scale and cultivated so many outstanding talents. Of course, all these are inseparable from the strong support of Lok-Sang (Prof. HO Lok-Sang), Ping (Prof. LIN Ping) and colleagues, especially Ada's selfless dedication and Kent's hard work.

Finally, I sincerely wish that the Department of Economics and the MIBF Programme will continue to thrive and progress under Larry's (Prof. Larry QIU) leadership, and that colleagues, classmates and friends will enjoy good healthy and success in their careers!

25 Years since establishment of the Department of Economics: Overview and New Accomplishments

Overview

Established 25 years ago in April 1996, the Department of Economics has developed from 9 to 14 academic members of staff. The Department is a multicultural community of academics dedicated to excellence in teaching, research, and community service. In the past two Research Assessment Exercises taken for all universities in Hong Kong, the Department has demonstrated its excellence in research output and impact. The Department's undergraduate teaching takes place in the context of an inter-disciplinary social sciences programme, where students can opt for different discipline majors or interdisciplinary areas of interest. The Department has leading scholars in fields related to money, banking and finance, international trade, digital economy, financial economics, behavioral economics and finance, international political economy, markets and regulations, and financial econometrics. These scholars provide high-quality teaching and learning experiences for students. The Department offers courses for the Bachelor of Social Sciences (Honours) Programme under its inter-disciplinary structure uniquely designed in the light of the increasing complexity of public and economic affairs in the 21st century. The Department contributes to all Majors in Social Sciences, not only the Discipline Major in Economics. Besides, the Department also offers a minor programme in Economics, MPhil/ PhD degrees in Economics, and two taught master's programmes: the MSc. in International Banking and Finance (MIBF – inaugurated in the 2006-2007 academic year) and MSc. in International Development Economics (MIDE – inaugurated in the 2018-2019 academic year). To motivate our students, the Department offers various of scholarships including awarding scholarships to the top three students from the Discipline Major in Economics and to the best minor students every academic year. Additional scholarships for postgraduate study motivate graduating students to pursue further study in economics. We also offer research internship and administrative internship to our students/graduates.

New Accomplishments

The Department continues to excel in policy-related, applied research, with a view to contributing to better policy making in Hong Kong and around the world, in line with the liberal arts mission of the University. Our research areas include international finance, finance, labour market, housing market, environmental economics, industrial economics, competition policy, health policy, and happiness studies. Apart from international journals, our staff also publish books and research reports, and conduct surveys and commissioned studies. The Department envisions that the staff research performance will increase in the coming academic years. The Department announced the Enhancing Research Supports Scheme to encourage, support, and reward colleagues in competitive research grant applications, cross-institutional research collaborations, and knowledge transfer endeavors.

The Department and the School of Economics and Management of Wuhan University (WHU) have launched a 4-year full-time mode double PhD degree programme in Economics in September 2021 to improve our RPg students' training with more rigorous coursework from WHU's PhD programme. Students will spend the first two years at WHU taking courses, and the next two years at LU working on a research thesis and fulfilling other programme requirements. Each student will be matched with a supervisor from LU and a co-supervisor from WHU. Upon graduation, students will be awarded double PhD degrees in Economics from LU and WHU. Besides, in order to give our good PhD graduates extra time to prepare for the job market, the Department will consider offering Post-doc positions.

Hong Kong is an international financial centre, which is integrated more and more with the Chinese and global economies. Both globalization and dis-globalization affect the daily business in every corner of society. The Department has been working on a proposal for a new self-financed Programme named "Bachelor of Social Sciences (Honours) in Global Economics and Banking (BSSGEB)" with a target launch date of September 2022. This programme is a 4-year full time course of study designed for students interested in Economics and Banking. The aim of this programme is to train more young professionals to meet the manpower need of the banking and finance sector in Hong Kong and the world.

HOCHSCHULE LUZERN

MSc International Banking & Finance, Lingnan University, Hong Kong

15th Anniversary: Congratulations from the Lucerne School of Business, your partner in Switzerland

Since 2016 the School of Business at the Lucerne University of Applied Sciences and Arts has been a proud double master's partner of the MSc International Banking and Finance (MIBF) programme at Lingnan University in Hong Kong. The MIBF programme is especially attractive to Lucerne students, of whom 30 to date have participated, because it offers them the opportunity to study Banking and Finance at a crossroads between China and the West. The combination of generic and specialist modules in Chinese-centred and Western-aware banking and financial subjects is exactly what graduate students from Switzerland are looking for in a double master's programme. Lingnan provides this with its excellent combination of theoretical and practically based content.

In the MIBF programme, the Lucerne School of Business has found a leading, academically and professionally recognised partner for reciprocal cooperation in the key financial hub that is Hong Kong. In turn, and for Lingnan students, the MIBF programme management's initiation of a successful and innovative study-week programme in Switzerland before the pandemic is an annual event that we all look forward to renewing in internationally less restrictive times.

The Lucerne School of Business wishes the MIBF programme at Lingnan University all the best for its next 15 years and looks forward to celebrating many future anniversaries of its continued success.
