Brief Course Description:

This course introduces students to issues related to the translation of commercial and financial texts from Chinese into English. Drawing attention to the linguistic features of these texts, the course will show students, through examples, ways of translating these texts into English. The course focuses on texts that discuss the business environment of the Chinese mainland and Hong Kong, where Chinese-English translation is regularly required. These documents include formal and informal correspondence, news clips, speeches, newsletters, market reviews and promotional texts.

Language of instruction: English / Chinese

Aims:

This course aims to enhance students' understanding of the macro-economic environment of the Chinese mainland and Hong Kong through the discussion of relevant and current texts, in English and Chinese, published in newspapers, financial magazines, and the Internet. It also aims to enhance students' competence in translating business and financial texts from Chinese into English.

Learning Outcomes (LOs):

Upon completion of this course, students will be able to:

1. identify the linguistic features and syntactic contrasts of commercial and financial texts in English and in Chinese;
2. master common business terminology in English and in Chinese;
3. write effective and grammatical English for the business field;
4. apply the techniques of business translation from Chinese to English; and
5. independently translate Chinese commercial and financial texts commonly found in the workplace into English.

Indicative Content:

1. Commercial correspondence.
2. Economic policies of China
3. Categories of Chinese companies.
4. Terminology in the Chinese stock market.
5. Investment portfolios: mutual funds.
6. Investment forecasts: newsletters.
7. Market analyses and financial news from Chinese mainland and Hong Kong.

Teaching Method:

Lectures and tutorial discussions

Measurement of Learning Outcomes:

Students' progress towards the learning outcomes will be measured by means of:

1. Translation assignments and in-class exercises that require students to demonstrate their knowledge of business and financial terminologies and their competence in the rendition of commercial or financial texts about Chinese mainland or Hong Kong from Chinese into English;
2. A written examination with translation tasks from Chinese to English.
